IV. New Business:

Name Change Request:

The Deans of the College of Applied Human Sciences and the College of Natural Sciences have requested that the name of the Academic Instruction Building be changed to the Behavioral Sciences Building to better reflect the programs that are housed in the building.

Tamla explains to the Board the name change request from the colleges and also explains that a building name can be changed when a donor donates a large sum of money to the University.

Tamla suggests that the students should have an opportunity to name the building and that perhaps a contest could be held and ask the students for their naming ideas.

Brian explains the basis for the request for the name change based on the programs housed in the building. He also tells the Board that students have paid for the building and should have a say in the naming of it.

The group discusses the name change and possible ways of getting student involvement in naming the building. Some of the ideas suggested included a survey restricted to the students whose programs housed in the building, Human Development and Family Studies and Psychology or a campus-wide voting process for a name.

The Board decides to place an ad in the Collegian and TODAY's FYI. A committee made up of UFFAB members, Laura, Jesse and Zach, will assist Toni in putting the ad together. It needs to be a simple request for input from the students on a name for the building. The ad in TODAY's FYI can have pictures of the building. The committee will narrow the suggestions down to the top ten and bring those back to the whole committee for a vote.
